The tour will be curated by Rufus Tiesing Stevenson, CEO of Jah Kente International, Inc. (USA) and Theresa Kwakye, CEO of Cross Cultural Travel & Tours (Ghana). (www.crossculturalgh.com.)

Theresa is a native of Washington DC and has lived in Ghana for 32 years. She enjoys showing off Ghana and helping visitors see the many facets of the country and its people. Cross Cultural has hosted many different groups over the years and prides itself on its customized tours which enlighten and enrich its varied clients.

Stevenson, the first Morehouse College graduate to serve in the Peace Corps (PC) received his MA from the Paul H. Nitze School of Advanced International Studies, Johns Hopkins University. He served in the U.S. Army; and a diplomat with the U.S. State Department in East and West Africa and the United Kingdom.

Jah Kente's mission nurtures the cultural spirit of Africa in the Diaspora and supports health and humanitarian programs in Africa. Jah Kente offers services to the community: use of colorful hand-woven textiles and artifacts from the African continent to display, exhibit and "special dress" venues (church sanctuaries, theater stages and special events.)
